

World War 1 - Upper Hopton Village

Harold Heeley

Rank: Private

Northumberland Fusiliers
Reg. No. 29/660

Summary

Harold survived the war and was demobilised but unfortunately Harold Heeley's war records were lost in the 2nd world war during the bombing raids.

We know his regiment and regiment number and the fact that he served in France but no other details.

His medal card and medals give his rank and regiment number.

World War 1 - Upper Hopton Village

Harold Heeley

Northumberland Fusiliers

When the First World War broke out in August 1914, the Northumberland Fusiliers, a fusilier infantry regiment of the British Army, consisted of 7 battalions, eventually expanding to 52 battalions, although not all existed at the same time, of which 29 served overseas. It was the second largest infantry regiment of the British Army during World War I, surpassed only by the 88 battalions of the London Regiment.

The Northumberland Fusiliers earned 67 battle honours and was awarded five Victoria Crosses, but at the cost of over 16,000 soldiers killed in action, and many thousands wounded. The Northumberland Fusiliers mostly saw action in the main theatre of war, engaged in static trench warfare on the Western Front in Belgium and France, but also participated in fighting on the Macedonian Front, the Gallipoli Campaign, the Sinai and Palestine Campaign and the Italian Front.
